"to faithfully evolve..."

With few exceptions, the Church arrived in North America carrying an empire more than the way of Jesus. It became complicit in the genocide of Indigenous peoples, the enslavement of Africans, the exploitation of creation, and the marginalization of women, Jews, Muslims, and LGBTQ+ people. Too often, domination was mistaken for discipleship.

What do historically marginalized communities have to teach the Church if it is to faithfully evolve?

What must we learn? How must we change?
How can we repair harm and move forward together?
